PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Stephen Luongo is an attorney working in Clark Partington's litigation department at the Pensacola Office. Stephen's practice focuses on an extensive array of civil litigation which includes business and corporate matters, construction and development disputes, personal injury, product liability, wrongful death and property damage claims.

Prior to joining Clark Partington, Stephen gained valuable legal experience working for a plaintiff's firm in Pensacola where his practice was focused on product liability, wrongful death, pharmaceutical litigation, and mass torts. Over the course of six years, he recovered millions for his clients as part of several high profile trial teams, including the National Opioid litigation and 3M military Ear Plug litigation.

Stephen began his career serving as an Assistant State Attorney in the First District of Florida. During his tenure, he prosecuted a wide range of crimes from sunshine law violations, violent crimes, traffic homicides, and first degree murders. Prior to leaving the State Attorney's office, he served as special prosecutor and was in charge of the traffic homicide division. Stephen is a graduate of Elizabethtown College, and Florida Coastal School of Law.
